

Something Missing

Wondering what it could be?

Editor's Corner

Does the space above seem a little empty? It does to me too. One of the things I know about myself as an addict is that I spent a lifetime waiting for someone else to do things for me. I figured if I left it long enough, someone would clean up my mess and for the most part, they did. The things that fell off along the way, I dismissed as unimportant. In some ways I thought myself to be the center of the universe, and in other ways, I didn't think anyone noticed or cared if I didn't show, if I didn't do what I said I would. It was and sometimes still is a strange contradiction. I left the space above blank on purpose. To show what would be missing if it weren't for the members of this program who come to meetings and share their experience, strength, and hope. Would you be where you are in your life, sobriety, and serenity? I know I wouldn't. I needed practical application of the 12 steps in front of me to know how to apply it in my own life. If you feel like this issue is a little bare, write something for the next one. Don't wait for the person next to you to share! Take that little bit of E,S,& H and give it away. You'll be glad you did and it may just keep you sober another day. Newsletter submissions are welcome! Email them to: newsletter@sanashville.org
